A. C. Buchanan and the Megantic Experiment: Promoting British Colonization in Lower Canada

Between 1829 and 1832 a British settler colony was established on the northern fringe of Lower Canada's Eastern Townships, in what became known as Megantic county. The main aim of the chief instigator and manager of the project, "emigrant" agent A. C. Buchanan, was to demonstrate the viability of state-assisted "pauper" colonization, as long advocated by Colonial Under-Secretary Robert Wilmot-Horton. Buchanan's project was successful insofar as he convinced over 5,300 immigrants, the majority of whom were Irish Protestants, to follow the Craig and Gosford roads to the uninhabited northern foothills of the Appalachians. But the British government failed to apply this "experiment" elsewhere in Lower Canada or Upper Canada, and the British settler community did not expand far beyond the townships of Leeds, Inverness, and Ireland because of their isolation from external markets. Instead, French-Canadian settlers moved into the surrounding townships, with the result that the British-origin population became a culturally isolated island of interrelated families that slowly disappeared due to out-migration.

Lucy Anglin – Finding Grenfell – People of the Mission - “Our ancestors want their stories told” said my third cousin and fellow genealogy writer. We are both related to my great aunt, Miss Marguerite Lindsay, and we were both told the same story growing up: Poor Marguerite Lindsay died tragically in Labrador, in 1922, at age 25. Period. We never questioned the statement nor begged for gory details. Little did we know that she did indeed have a story to tell and she finally got her wish almost 100 years later > Genealogy Ensemble

Lucy Anglin – Miss Lindsay's Last Letter from Cartwright, Labrador - Marguerite Lindsay wrote a letter from Cartwright, Labrador, to her brother in Montreal, Quebec. The letter was postmarked July 29, 1922. Six days later she was dead.

Marguerite, 26, volunteered as a summer teacher in 1922 with the Grenfell Mission at Rev. Henry Gordon's orphanage school in Muddy Bay six miles from Cartwright.> Genealogy Ensemble

Barb Angus – Lusitania Legacy - The crowd of 600 invited guests and thousands of spectators cheered as the great ship slid into the waters of the Clyde on June 7th, 1906. She had been commissioned by Cunard, built at the John Brown and Company shipyards, and christened the Lusitania. For a brief time, she was the largest ship on the seas. One man in the crowd may not have been cheering: my grandfather James Rankin Angus. He knew the employment he had so recently secured as a joiner would soon be over. On September 7th, 1907, her outfitting completed, the Lusitania would make her maiden voyage to New York > Genealogy Ensemble

Barb Angus – John Hamilton Graham – First Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Quebec - My family is a Masonic Family. My grandfather immigrated to Canada as a Mason. My Canadian-born father was a Mason. My husband is a Mason today. My husband and I are also educators and members of the Quebec Provincial Association of Teachers. Tracey Arial – Discovering Scottish and Irish Roots – My former red hair often had people asking where in Scotland I'm from. For years, I knew of no Scottish blood relatives. Now, I've finally found Scottish and Irish roots on my mom's side.

Tracey Arial – What legacy stems from our Quebec Pioneers – Can someone leave a lasting legacy in less than 26 years? That's the first thing I thought about when I began researching my seven times great grandmother on my fathers' side. I think so. The era they lived, the names they called their children, the way they responded to pressure—it all combines to create the culture that immediately follows them. Every generation leaves a mark on its culture. We today are artifacts of our ancestors, even those born more than 300 years ago, like my ancestor Barbe Dodier > Genealogy Ensemble

Marian Bulford – British Mourning Cards and Funeral Fashion - As a child in Britain in the early 1950's I remember the death of our Monarch King George VI on 6th February 1952. I was 6 and a half. When his death was announced on the radio, my family and grandparents immediately drew all the blinds in their houses and covered all the mirrors and clocks. Neighbours did the same. A black funeral wreath was placed on the front door, and black bands were purchased for the men, these to be worn on arms when outdoors. The family spoke in hushed tones. I clearly remember answering the door to a visitor and whispering to them "The King has died" > Genealogy Ensemble

Marion Bulford – English Huguenots – The Huguenot of England – Part 2 - At the end of the 17th century, 60,000 to 80,000 Huguenots settled in the Southwest of England and were known as Britain's first refugees. The 'Currant Examiner' of September 1681, contains this quote that resonates today:

Plymouth Septem. 6. This day came in hither a small bark from Rochel, (La Rochelle) with thirty nine poor Protestants, who are fled for their Religion: They report that five or six Boats more full of these poor distressed Creatures parted from those parts at the same time; and we hear that one of them is already put into Dartmouth. > Genealogy Ensemble

Marian Bulford – English Huguenots – The Huguenot of England – Part 1 - After I recently read a short article about English Huguenot, it made me want to find out how and why they ended up in England. The Huguenot were Protestants in a largely Catholic populated country and after Louis XIV cancelled their civil rights granted to them by the 'Edict of Nantes' in 1685, about 50,000 fled France across the English Channel. Once in England, they spread out not only to London but to 20 towns from Canterbury to Norwich, Plymouth to Rochester. As time went on, many of them drifted towards the Church of England and names became anglicized. Ferret became Ferry and Fouache became Fash most often due to mistakes made by English clerks.> Genealogy Ensemble

Janice Hamilton – Building the Lachine Canal - When Stanley Bagg and his business partners began excavating a canal around the Lachine Rapids near Montreal in 1821, they had to deal with more rock and water than they had bargained for. The Lachine Rapids are a short stretch of white water and submerged rocks in the St. Lawrence River that impede shipping between the port of Montreal and the Great Lakes. According to the legislation that authorized the project, the 14.5-kilometre canal was to be five feet (1.5 metres) deep. On the surface, it was to be forty feet (12 metres) wide so that the long, narrow Durham boats that transported goods and passengers on the river could pass each other. There was to be a towpath beside the water so horses could pull the boats, since it would be impractical to use sails. > Genealogy Ensemble

Janice Hamilton – Stanley Bagg – Part of the Bagg family fonds now online - Many people have old family treasures such as letters and albums in the attic. In my family, a collection of 200-year-old business records made their way from the attic to a Montreal museum, and now some of them have been digitized and placed online for everyone to explore. Part of the Bagg Family Fonds housed at the McCord Museum, these newly digitized images include records from the store where the workmen who built the Lachine Canal in the early 1820s bought their bread and rum. > Genealogy Ensemble

Janice Hamilton – John Clark, 19th Century Real Estate Visionary – Clark Street in Montreal's Mile End neighbourhood features two-storey row houses, most of them red brick or grey stone, set back a few feet from the sidewalk. Two hundred years ago, this now densely populated street was just a gleam in the eye of my four-times great-grandfather John Clark (1767-1827), who owned that land. Today, Clark Street looks remarkably similar to the way he envisioned it. > Genealogy Ensemble

Claire Lindell – A long lasting lesson by Claire Lindell - During the past year racism and the Covid19 pandemic have been uppermost in the news. The Black Lives Matter movement protesters have been out in full force, particularly since the death of George Floyd. People from all walks of life around the world have been expressing their desire, their dreams and hopes for change. Growing up in a small mining town in the Eastern Townships in the 50s the population was predominantly Caucasians, either French or English speaking. There were no other ethnic groups at the time. When I made frequent trips to the orthodontist in Montreal, I became aware of many diverse groups in our country. That was not the case in our small town. There were no people of African American descent or other ethnic groups. > Genealogy Ensemble

Claire Lindell – Pierre-Esprit Radisson, my ancestor. He was a co-founder and received the charter for the Hudson Bay Company from the King of England, Charles II in 1670. I am proud to call him my eight Great Uncle - Much has been written about Radisson and his brother-in-law, Medard Chouart Des Groseilliers and their explorations of the Great Lakes and later, the far north where they were trading furs. Very little is known about his personal life. He spent time in Three Rivers, his “home base” when he was not on one of his four lengthy journeys > Genealogy Ensemble

Claire Lindell – My Finnish Grandfather - The young Finnish merchant marine, Johan Hjalmar Lindell along with his mates went in, to Boston while the ship was anchored. While ashore they were all encouraged to drink, and they had more than a few pints. The drunken sailors were brought back on-board ship. When Johan and another mate realized that they had been “shanghaied”, they decided to swim ashore. They had previously planned to remain in the United States, the land of opportunity! They were successful. A decision neither ever regretted > Genealogy Ensemble

Sandra McHugh – Hogmanay – The Scots call the New Year's Eve celebration Hogmanay.¹ Hogmanay is part of my family's history. Imagine Christmas being cancelled? As we all face lockdown restrictions, we can easily imagine how the Scots felt in 1580 when John Knox banned the celebration of Christmas. Hogmanay is an important celebration in Scotland. It is believed that this festival was first brought to Scotland by the Vikings for whom the passing of the shortest day of the year, the winter solstice, was an event to be celebrated.⁵ The importance of Hogmanay took on an even greater significance because Christmas was banned in Scotland for about 400 years. > Genealogy Ensemble

Dorothy Nixon – When history and genealogy come together – Genealogy is usually of little interest to children probably because their parents already seem from the Dark Ages and their grandparents from the times when Tyrannosaurus Rex tramped the planet. It was the same thing for me way back in the 1960's – except for the one day when I was about twelve years old. My mother came home all excited with some important news passed on to her by a cousin who had researched the Crepeau family tree. > Genealogy Ensemble

Dorothy Nixon – The family genealogist - The truth is, family genealogists haven't changed that much over the years. They are still the one in the family with time on their hands and the fierce determination to stick with it through all the brick walls and misinformation and family myth muddles. They still wonder, when all is said and done, if anyone in the future will value their hard work > Genealogy Ensemble

Dorothy Nixon – Do you believe in Ghosts? – Over a decade ago, I discovered an old trunk of paper memorabilia once belonging to Nicholson family of Richmond, Quebec, my husband's mother's ancestors. It contained 1000 letters, 300 from the pivotal 1908-1913 years. From these missives, I learned a great deal about these Canadian- born Scots, whose parents were Hebridean Scots, cleared from the land in the 1800's and forced to come to Canada. And, because of a rather weird series of coincidences I learned all about a certain Masonic sword. > Genealogy Ensemble

John D. Reid – From the UK to Valleyfield, Quebec: The author explains how Valleyfield's Montreal Cotton Mill, under the entrepreneurial guidance of Ulster-born Andrew Frederick Gault (1833-1903), known during his life as the Cotton King of Canada, enticed skilled British immigrants to the town southwest of Montreal. The author mentions that an article in the Times of London of October 11, 1907, titled "Recruiting Skilled Labour for Canada," refers to the largest need for skilled labour being for spinners and weavers for the cotton mills of Montreal and Valleyfield, with 135 workers having recently come from Lancashire – September 6, 2013 > Canada's Anglo-Celtic Connections > Quescren-Concordia

Mary Sutherland – Who were the Irish Presbyterians? – My father's family were all professed Presbyterians, a religion which originated in Scotland. This included both those on his Scottish father's side and his Irish mother's side. Religion was very important in all their lives. They were part of a church, "which had a noble band of loyal devoted men and women who have counted it their chief joy to seek its highest welfare" > Genealogy Ensemble

Mary Sutherland – Living in Westmount – One Sunday after the service at St. Andrew's United Church, Westmount, a friend of my mother's commented on an article in the Westmount Examiner. The subscriber's card of Bibliothèque et Archives nationales du Québec (BAnQ) is free for all Québec residents. It allows patrons to use all services, collections and equipment offered on-site at the Grande Bibliothèque, at BAnQ Rosemont–La Petite-Patrie and at the ten (10) BAnQ Archives (Archives nationales du Québec) across the Province of Québec.

To obtain your subscriber's card, see: How can I access my Account? – A few paragraphs below.

The card provides access to numerous services relating to borrowing materials, and to other on-site and online services.

The front of the card is in colour and the back is in black and white. There is a number on each side that is useful for various services.

The client number on the front of the card can be used online:
